2.7.1 – Student Satisfaction Survey (SSS) on overall institutional performance:

Response:-

There is no doubt that students are at the centre of all activities of the college. Overall development of students personality is primary goal of any educational institution. It is therefore essential to know about the satisfaction of students about the Institution. The college gets feedback from students through various means like students council, mentor-mentee interaction, informal discussions with students and faculty and representation of students in College Development Committee (CDC). A structured questionnaire is prepared and put on college website to get feedback from students about their opinion about teachers and teaching, facilities available to them for learning and studying, improvements they expect and their general satisfaction. Feedback obtained from students through both formal and informal sources is discussed in the IQAC meetings and College Development Committee (CDC) Meeting.

On the basis of feedback obtained from students through various means, we are of the firm view that level of student satisfaction is satisfactory in the college, though of course, there is always scope for improvement and college and management always try to ensure that students are satisfied with performance of college as educational institution.
